

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A dispensing device for fluid substances includes a receiving element for receiving fluid substances, formed of at least two rigidly interconnected containers with adjacent outlets on the front sides thereof, a mixing nozzle which is connected to the receiving element by a mixing nozzle holder and which is fluidically and conductively connected to the outlets, and a pressure-producing means for ejecting the fluid substances through the outlets. The mixing nozzle holder is a detachable catching closure.